1. On 26 August I participated in the [REDACTED] exercise, representing OTR at the emergency relocation site [REDACTED]

2. This was the third and last day of the [REDACTED] exercise and there was a natural letdown among the various participants. DD/I continued to run its problem but was no longer passing questions and portions of its problem to DD/S elements. I occupied most of my time by participating with a one-day group from the Office of Personnel who were being briefed on personnel planning for emergencies and were also being oriented with respect to relocation facilities. Additionally, [REDACTED] gave me a fairly complete walk-through of [REDACTED] reproduction facilities.

3. My particular problem in the exercise was to ascertain transportation facilities available to OTR during a general emergency. A Logistics representative [REDACTED] with whom I talked said there is no over-all transportation plan. He was relatively uninformed as to what we could expect in an emergency. My conclusion is that aside

[REDACTED]

4. The biggest change I noticed at [REDACTED] between its present emergency capability and that of 1955 (the last time I checked) is in its reproduction facilities. These have been improved dramatically and I believe would meet reasonably well emergency requirements.
